Marthurin Romegas Hall
National Museum of Archaeology

Multipurpose spaces ideal for conferences, lectures and seminars as well as small seated events.

The National Museum of Archaeology is housed in the Auberge de Provence, in Republic Street, Valletta. The building, an example of fine Baroque architecture, was built in 1571 and followed a plan by local architect Gilormu Cassar. The Auberge de Provence was house to the Knights of the Order of St John originating from Provence, France and displays beautiful architectural features.

Martin Romegas Hall
Venue ideal for:
- Corporate Events
- Product Launches
- Standing Receptions
- Conferences, Seminars & Lectures & Workshops
- Press Conferences

Space for rent:
45m² (10m x 4.5m)

Capacity
60 standing
60 seated

Accessibility and Facilities:
- Projector, screen and sound system
- Storage area for caterers
- Wheelchair accessible
- Accessible restrooms

* Terms & Conditions Apply